INSIDE ARIK

Arik Air moves to the new Gabfol Business Class Lounge in Murtala Muhammed International Airport, Lagos.

When it comes to comfort, airport departure halls can be about as relaxing as an oversold pop concert. Getting past throngs of passengers, to check-in and through passport control can feel like a marathon effort.

Knowing this, and the importance of having a space for Business Class passengers to rejuvenate and catch up on important work, Arik Air has completed its long-awaited move to a new Business Class lounge facility at Murtala

Muhammed International Airport, Lagos. "The move to the new Gabfol Lounge shows our commitment to providing the very best facilities for our Business Class customers," says Dr Michael Arumemi-lkhide, Group CEO of Arik Air. "We wanted to ensure that the departure lounge we decided to move to was going to be the best on offer and I believe that the Gabfol Lounge is the best lounge in Murtala Muhammed International Airport."

Tastefully furnished and spacious, the lounge is divided into two areas, the Premium Area and the Discussion Area. Both sections have private seating areas furnished with leather recliners and sofas, wireless broadband access and HD LCD TVs.

In addition to comfort and business facilities, the new departure lounge is the first in Nigeria to contain a Wellness Centre with trained therapists offering a range of treatments including Thai healing massage, a foot spa, head and Friendly staff are on hand to assist guests.

Complete Comfort

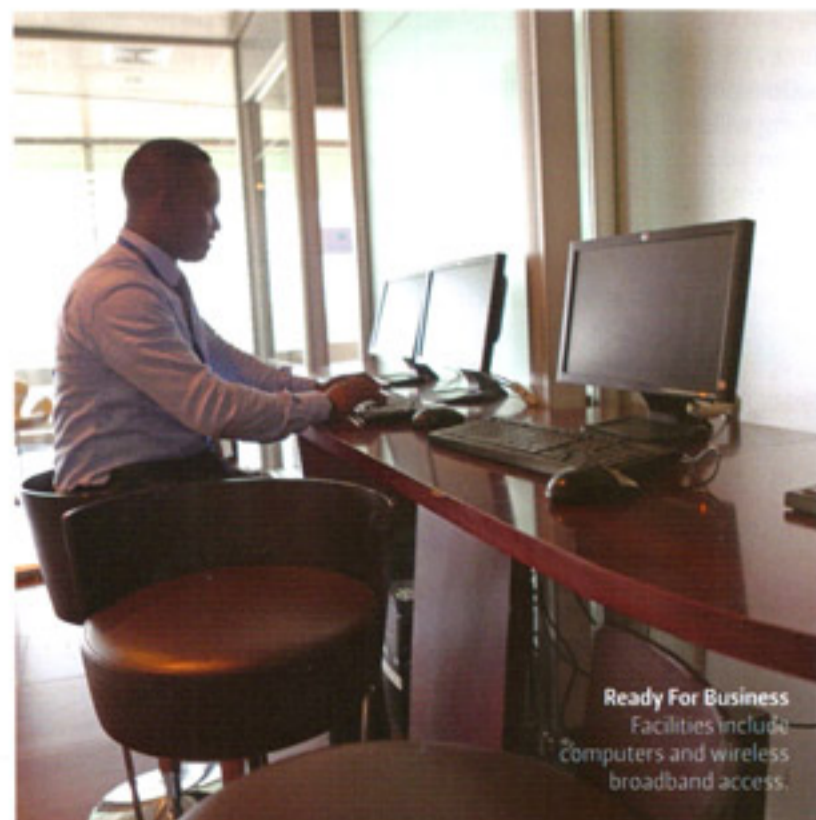

The lounge is a world away from the hustle and bustle of the departures hall.

shoulder massage as well as soothing manicure and pedicure services.

A broad range of international and local cuisine is also available in The Restaurant with staple favourites such as Jollof rice, and a selection of Thai, Vietnamese and English dishes to whet the appetite of the peckish traveller.

From check-in to landing, Arik Air continues to enhance its world-class service for customers and ensure that Business Class passengers can relax and arrive at their destination fully prepared for the work day ahead.

Ready For Business

Facilities include computers and wireless broadband access.
